foreword

It's all done by mirrors . . .

Although building a well-developed physique is now a more "accepted" form of endeavour than it was in more Puritan times, there is still a surprising number of letters written to Editors of Physique Magazines which give the impression that

SPARTANS ALL

Sometime B.C., in the days of ancient Greece, you hear a lot about the Spartans, a hardy race who clashed more than once with the Trojans and other Greek races. They were sturdy warriors, as valiant in attacking an enemy as in defending their way of life, which was itself so renowned that to this day if you wish to compliment someone on the husky simplicity of his method of living you call him a Spartan.

This, then, is all leading up to the suggestion that it was perhaps not just a coincidence that models like Don Reyes, Peter Gordon, Bill Cunney and the others on the Spartan list could well embody the ideals of their nominal forebears.

DAVID

CHALK and CHEESE

Rarely have we received from one studio a batch of photos containing two such different models photographed in two such contrasting styles ! Which is something of an achievement so put the flags out and let's celebrate.

Both models are around the same age, 19/20 and same height 5' 8"/5'9" . . . . but from the husky, playful, almost snap-shot pictures of David Selhine, to the subtly restrained and dramatic poses of Richard Arcieri, is a leap that spans the whole range of photographic Art. It seems almost superfluous to tell you that Selhine, recently discharged from the U.S. marines, only lately started body-building and is now already aiming for titles; Arcieri doesn't touch weights very often, but attributes his physique to being very active as a wrestler and on the football field. For the rest we leave you the photos, and pass a vote of thanks to Kris Studio.

will by now have an impressive list of Bruce discoveries, of all our contributing Photographers Bruce can be relied on to turn up with a winner— a name which will appear time and again in your letters extolling his praises and demanding repeats. Just as we featured Jerry Roquemore and Perry Peters in Body Beautiful last month, so we have Harry Miller amongst the Adonis stars this month — and watch the fan-mail come pouring in !

But before we conclude the Bruce eulogy, we must apologise; apparently we just cannot satisfy the current craving for Roquemore. "More Roquemore" seems to be the theme of above half our letters from you, so to keep the peace, here's another couple of young Jerry — and please see P. 51 for any more you need !

the correspondents still think the "gods" whose photos we publish are not real — that there's some trickery somewhere — maybe that its all done by mirrors, as they used to say when conjurors produced an apparently impossible trick. Just to show that the Adonises we portray are very real indeed, we got Delmonteque to take some unusual shots of handsome Bob Hover and his just as handsome reflection in a huge mirror ! And we're sure you've read so much about Hover, the Warner film and TV star, that you will not need a resumé here.

We will take this opportunity to remind you, however, that your two favorite mags still appear consecutively :— the next Body Beautiful will be January, and the next Adonis February; so mail your subscription and guarantee your copy. Remember, its cheaper that way too !

lighting, arranged so as to set off the sculptured solidity of the model as well as to accent the interesting interplay of highlight and shadow. It confers that three-dimensional quality to these pictures of Australian Ron Garrick and Londoner Bill Coggin. You might call it hi-fi in photography, which would amuse Coggin, because he's a VHF radio expert and knows all about hi-fi sound reproduction.
